One Hundred Miles is currently recruiting students to participate in our Youth Environmental Leadership Program (YELP). As a 2021 - 2022 YELP candidate, students will participate in an exciting year-long adventure that includes in-depth field workshops, service-learning opportunities, and the development of a community action project. YELP will provide students with unique, behind-the-scenes experiences and exposure to barrier islands, habitats, wildlife, and cultural history that the average student cannot access.

Through this application process, One Hundred Miles is looking to recruit a group of conservation-minded students who will grow to be leaders in their communities and active stewards of the natural world. As a part of our application process, students are required to obtain a teacher recommendation. This recommendation will help us select the best candidates for this program.
